

To newly enrolled students to the Graduate School of Science and Engineering

Research Ethics Education (e-learning)

Chiba University provides the Research Ethics Education for researchers according to “Guidelines for Responding to Misconduct in Research (adopted by Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology/MEXT)”.

And besides, all the graduate students as being equivalent to the researchers are required to take the Research Ethics Education (e-learning).

Therefore, take the course of APRIN e-learning program as below in October.

(The new doctoral students who already took the course when being as the master’s students, must still take the course once again.)

In addition, those students who do not take the course are not allowed to take the compulsory subject “Graduate Research I and II” (called “Tokubetsu Kenkyu I and II”).
